The Master of Science in Accounting Program (MSAC) is an one-year full-time program that aims at providing postgraduate accounting education to students with bachelor degrees in business and non-business disciplines, and bridging them with a channel to enter accounting-related professions.

The program is both practical and academically rigorous. It intends to groom “thinking” professional accountants at postgraduate level and educate them to become successful business professionals across different business functions, such as accounting, finance, treasury, taxation, auditing, business consulting, and corporate strategic planning. The program will further promote the collaborations and connections with the professional community, e.g., CPA firms and other corporations.

Students will be provided with specialized knowledge in accounting which will enable them to enter the HKICPA QP, as well as related fields of finance, information systems, international business and investment so that graduates can make a significant contribution to the functioning and development of their employing organizations.
Concentration in Accounting Analytics
(New in 2019-20 Intake)

Considering the upcoming requirements of using accounting analytics techniques to perform their job, a new Accounting Analytics concentration is added to the MSAC Program starting from academic year 2019-20 (apply to the student cohort admitted starting Fall 2019).

Students who opt for the Accounting Analytics concentration are required to take four electives in Accounting Analytics as part of the program requirements.
Program Schedule

The MSAC program commences in September and starts with nine core courses (18 credits) and a pre-selected elective course ACCT5220 (2 credits), required by HKICPA for OP, as foundation training in accounting.

Students are required to complete a total of 30 credits of coursework of core and elective courses. Students completed the program are eligible to apply for the HKICPA OP.

Students who are simply interested in traditional accounting or business related knowledge can choose five elective courses (10 credits) in disciplines across different business functions and declare graduation without concentration.

Enrolling in the MSAC program is one of the best investments I have ever made. Academically, the program is rigorous and the professors are highly qualified. I appreciated how some of the professors shared with us about their research, as well as anecdotes from their work experience – they made accounting feel tangible and important. The environment at HKUST is also great for business students. The MSAC program reflects Hong Kong: it offers plenty of opportunities to explore the city as not only a finance capital of Asia, but also as an important connection between China and the West. Furthermore, there is a strong entrepreneurial spirit at HKUST, and the business school provides excellent support for students searching for job opportunities in Hong Kong. The MSAC program’s curriculum is well designed, in particular, as a graduate from a non-accounting bachelor program, I have acquired practical foundation knowledge of accounting from the core courses. I really appreciated our professors who organized the course content in a way that students can easily understand, even those who come from a non-accounting background. I found that accounting is more interesting than I had expected. The MSc Career & Professional Development (CPD) team helped us to polish resume for targeted job applications, offered mock interview sessions, and personal coaching which provided useful feedback and guidance.
